A fast-growing SaaS business. Four markets. One view.

Xero was expanding across New Zealand, Australia, the UK and the US. Leadership needed growth performance they could read at a glance and act on.

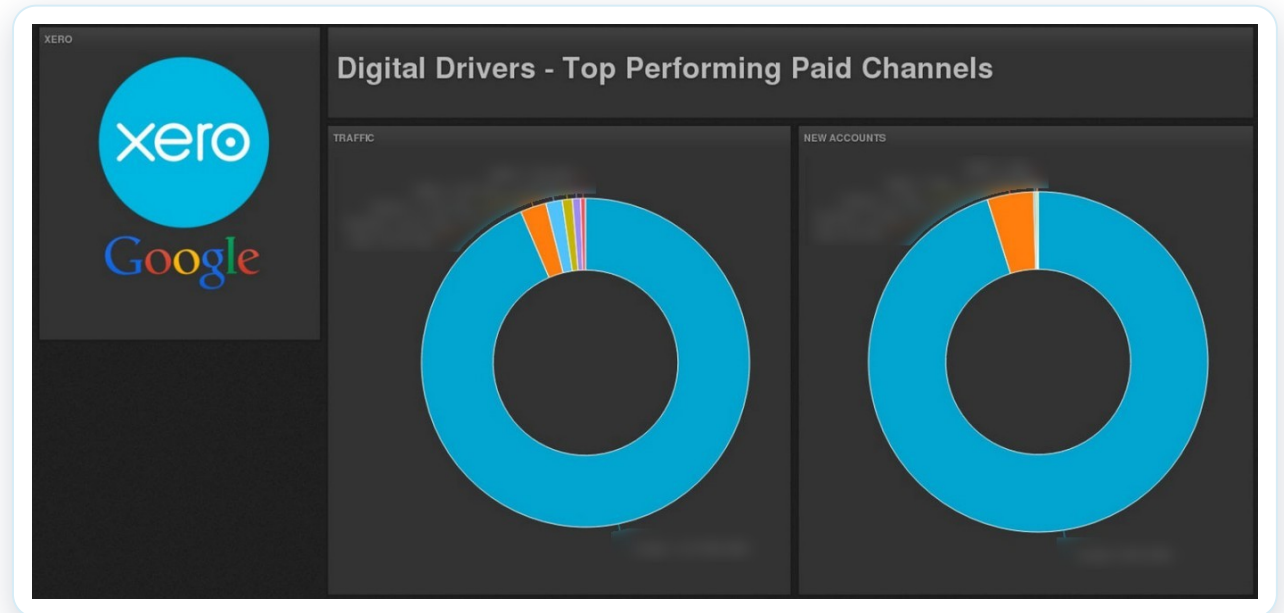

THE COMMERCIAL CONTEXT

As Google's senior Industry Lead for Xero, I looked after the strategic relationship and worked with the team on customer acquisition, go-to-market and international expansion.

The opportunity was bigger than campaign reporting: a simple decision layer linking performance signals to the next growth action.

From reporting to a live growth decision system

Working with Account Manager Simon and specialist teams, we built an automated dashboard designed for executives.

What is happening?

A single view of acquisition and market performance.

Why is it happening?

Interpretation and commentary alongside the data.

What should we do next?

Growth opportunities and recommended actions for decision-makers.

The point was never more data. It was faster, better growth decisions.

Weekly view by market: health status, change and recommended next step

A SaaS growth story, not just an ad dashboard

It connected acquisition, market expansion, measurement and senior decision-making across Xero's international growth.

SaaS GTM

Supported Xero's growth across four international markets.

Acquisition

Linked paid-channel performance to customer-growth signals.

Measurement

Brought market-level performance and attribution into one executive view.

Executive action

Turned data into commentary, priorities and investment decisions.

The objective wasn't to tell Xero what had happened. It was to help leadership decide what to do next.

Recognised by Google for innovation

The Xero Live Dashboard was named a winning entry in the Q3 2015 LCS Innovation Awards.
